MigraVoice: Migrant Voices Matter in the European Media is a project co-funded by the European Union that amplifies the voices and perspectives of migrants within the European media and information space, by promoting active participation of individuals with migration backgrounds in the creation of high-quality media content for European audiences in both traditional and social media formats. MigraVoice will create a cross-border community of experts with migration backgrounds, forming the 'MigraVoice Superpower Community', who will provide their knowledge as trusted sources in European media content.

Register in the MigraVoice Superpower Community so you can be contacted by European journalists to provide your knowledge and insights in media publications.

Receive training opportunities and materials to support your skills in communicating with journalists and responding effectively to their requests.

Promote the MigraVoice Superpower Community and project among others in your networks who might be interested in participating.

WHAT DO WE MEAN BY AN “EXPERT WITH MIGRATION OR REFUGEE EXPERIENCE”?

In MigraVoice, we believe that everyone is an expert in something.

You don't need a PhD: An expert for us is someone who has a comprehensive understanding and knowledge of a particular issue, topic or discipline.

It is not necessary for you to have a PhD (although you can do of course) or elaborate traditional studies, just some kind of evidence that testifies to your engagement and expertise in their field (this could be publications, work experience, online course certificates...).

Migration experience? By migration or refugee experience, we refer to an individual who resides (or whose parents reside) in a country different to their country of birth—especially if their birth country is outside the top 30 countries of the UNDP's HDI Index.

Any kind of expertise is welcome: We are looking for experts in any topic, not just migration issues. It could be expertise in nutrition, history, law, climate science, sport or any other topic you can think of.
